

Agreement for Use of Church Hall or Church

Partial or Shared use ONLY

It is very common for Church halls and, increasingly, Churches to be “let out” for use by community groups or individuals and organisations for commercial activities. A style of terms and conditions is attached.

When allowing use of the premises, the following points should be borne in mind:

1. These terms are solely for use where the congregation is dealing with non - Church of Scotland organisations. This circular relates to Scotland and the style complies with Scots law. Some clauses e.g. that relating to the safeguarding of children and protected adults will require to be adapted for use by congregations outwith Scotland, who should seek legal advice locally.
2. The style is intended only for use in cases where outside organisations are being allowed partial or shared use of Church premises, e.g for a one off event, or so many hours per week, with the Congregation being entitled to sole use at all other times.
3. The style is designed to provide flexibility to both parties so that both the congregation and user can end the arrangement on giving a certain amount of notice. It is not appropriate for use in cases where the arrangements are to be binding on both parties for more than a year. In such cases, if the property is vested in the General Trustees, the matter should be reported to the Secretary of the General Trustees as it will fall to the General Trustees, in consultation with the Financial Board, to make any arrangement with the users.

Where the property is vested in local trustees for the congregation and where at the outset the users are being given rights to the premises for more than a year, the Financial Board is strongly advised to seek legal advice. The Law Department of the Church will be pleased to act in such cases.

4. It is advisable to obtain a detailed programme of the event/use prior to commencement of the agreement for consideration before a decision is made to proceed. The use of the premises should not be one which is prohibited in terms of any conditions contained in the title deeds. It may be advisable to seek legal advice so that this can be checked. Another factor which should be borne in mind is the possibility that - depending on the proposed use - temporary Planning or other Local Authority permissions may be needed.
5. Churches and Church Halls, benefit from full exemption from non-domestic rates. Financial Boards are entitled to charge full market rents to those using the premises without their charitable exemption from non-domestic rates being affected. Water and wastewater charges are covered by different legislation and many congregations are currently exempted from paying such charges in terms of the Water and Wastewater Exemption Scheme, depending on the level of income.

6. Potentially, the letting of premises may be affected by discrimination law. The relevant legislation is the Equality Act 2010, which covers amongst other things the management of premises and the provision of facilities and services. The Act contains some protections for churches, allowing them to impose certain requirements in relation to the use of their premises in some circumstances where doing so might otherwise be discriminatory. This is a complex area and if any such restrictions on use are being contemplated, advice should be sought from the Law Department.
7. Adequate insurance arrangements should be made by the users who should be asked to exhibit Certificates of Insurance for approval by the Financial Board of the Congregation. Note that the sum for public liability insurance has been set to £5 million. Congregations will need to consider whether this is adequate taking into consideration the size of the building and the potential use by third parties. There may be cases where small local groups may find it difficult or expensive to obtain their own insurance. At the end of the day, it will be for the Financial Board to decide whether, in any particular case, to grant a let to an “uninsured” group. Before doing so, however, they should very carefully assess the risks involved and they may also wish to consult the Church of Scotland Insurance Company Limited for further advice.

Where loss occurs due to the fault of the user - e.g. by setting the building on fire, the cost will, in all probability, be met by the Church’s insurers via the Congregation’s property insurance. It is to be anticipated, however, that the insurers will seek to recover the sums paid out from the user. Obviously, this could prove difficult in a small community. Additionally, there may well be occasions when the Congregation might suffer a loss and no claim could be submitted on the Congregation’s insurance. As an example, not all Congregational property may be covered for theft. If a user omitted to secure the premises when leaving and items of Congregational property were stolen, no claim could be made and the loss would have to be recovered from the user.

8. The style contains a specific clause concerning lets for regulated work with children and young people or protected adults. For the avoidance of doubt, so far as outside groups are concerned, no actual day-to-day supervision of the users’ activities is necessary. Indeed, any “involvement” of Church personnel which might give outsiders the impression that the users were operating in some way under the umbrella of the Congregation might have its own dangers vis-à-vis questions of legal liability. It is however entirely proper that before agreeing to the use, certain assurances should be sought as to safeguarding procedures and this is reflected in the relative clause in the agreement.
9. Where alcohol is to be served in the premises, care will require to be taken to ensure that the users observe the necessary licensing formalities. You may wish to refer to our separate circular on the Church and Alcohol which explains the requirements. http://www.churchofscotland.org.uk/data/assets/pdf_file/0019/2836/law_alcohol.pdf

10. Some uses/events may require a Theatre licence or a Public Entertainment license and again care will require to be taken to ensure that the users observe the necessary licensing formalities. Please see our Licensing of Events circular.

11. Where the premises will be used for food preparation (beyond tea, coffee and biscuits) it is important that the User is aware of and familiar with the food hygiene regulations. You may wish to refer to our separate circular which explains the requirements and to the Health and Safety Toolkit issued by the Church of Scotland General Trustees.
12. All congregations should have a Health and Safety policy and Fire Safety Policy in place and whilst the style refers to some actions that are necessary on the part of the Hall user, depending on the premises in question it may be that further steps are necessary. Consideration should be given to appending the Fire Safety instructions to the Terms & Conditions.
13. Appropriate steps will require to be taken to deal with the risks caused by COVID-19. The style includes obligations on users to comply with the congregation's COVID 19 operating plan and to produce their own risk assessment. It includes obligations to wipe down all surfaces with suitable disinfectant after use but Congregations may prefer to make their own arrangements for cleaning of surfaces within the premises after each use, recovering the cost from the user. It may also necessary be verify with the user that numbers of people using the premises will not exceed a permissible level and that physical distancing requirements will be observed at all times.
14. Clearly the attached style will require to be adapted depending on local circumstances and, indeed, the use which is to be made of the accommodation by outside bodies. It is designed to give general guidance only. The Law Department is more than happy to assist and so please do not hesitate to contact us for help – lawdept@churchofscotland.org.uk
15. Finally, please remember to remove the guidance notes and end notes prior to issuing for signature.
